PRESS RELEASE

Roose+Partners announce further expansion

3 May 2016

We are very pleased to announce that Tim Wardlaw, a Partner from Thomas Cooper LLP where he has been for the past nine years, has joined the Firm.

Tim, a litigation lawyer with more than 30 years experience, is particularly well known within the London Insurance Market for his expertise and handling of major shipping casualties (including high profile collisions), piracy and hull & machinery matters and, of course, disputes arising from Bills of Lading, Charter Parties and contracts for the carriage of goods by road.

Tim is also well regarded for his work on several, Market-renowned, reinsurance fraud disputes.

Nick Hampton, Partner, says:-

'In cricketing terms, Tim is our Sir Ian Botham - a first class all rounder with the ability to handle a wide range of marine-related disputes! He is also a thoroughly good bloke and we are delighted to have him on the team'.

Tim comments:-

'It is a real pleasure to join a relatively young and modern Firm which is clearly going places, and I hope that my long experience will be of assistance to the Firm's expanding client base in the future. It is particularly pleasing that my arrival brings the total of ex-Clyde & Co lawyers to seven, and the total team to 15'.
